Guest Article :

Rev. Jerome Machar OCSO

(Jeremiah 38: 4-6, 8-10, Hebrews 12:1-4, Luke 12: 49-53)

"And Jeremiah sank into the mud" (Jer. 38:10). The image is quite graphic. The prophet is slowly swallowed by darkness, darkness from above and darkness below. The Psalmist wrote about such a moment. "Insults have broken my heart and have left me helpless. I looked for someone to take pity on me, but there was none, for comforters, but I found none" (Ps. 69:20). This scene brought to mind some alcoholics I know. "If not for bad luck, I'd have no luck at all." As the prophet sinks into the darkness, he is swallowed up by the muck and slime of the earth. To think that Jeremiah is confined to the underworld by the people he came to save. I found it interesting that he is saved through the intervention of a despised outcast, a black man named Ebed-melech.

Ebed-melech was an Ethiopian who worked in the service of the king. He watched the drama of hate play unfold. Moved with compassion, he approached the king and said, "This is wrong." As Jeremiah is sinking in the mud, this right-seeing black man raised his voice in the name of justice and right. The fact that he was an outsider and, in the minority, did not stop him from doing the right thing. He knew that like Jeremiah, he was made from the same clay by the Lord of the Universe and that they both belonged to Him. Like the Good Samaritan this single, virtuous Ethiopian knew himself to be his brother's keeper. "I am only one, but still, I am one. I cannot do everything, but still, I can do something; and because I cannot do everything, I will not refuse to do something that I can do" (Edward Everett Hale).

The comedienne Lily Tomlin once said, "I always wondered why somebody doesn't do something about that. Then I realized I was somebody." Had Ebed-melech waited for somebody to do something, the prophet Jeremiah would have died. By taking the first step, he opened the door for three more people to help him pull the prophet out of the mud. We who generally focus on the "big picture" need to learn how to look in the eyes of the person in front of us who needs our help. The Talmud offers this wonderful insight. "Whoever saves a single life is considered by scripture to have saved the whole world" (Sanhedrin 37a). The reason for this is: that we are created in God's image. Think of it. God started the human race by forming one lump of clay in his hands. We can help heal the wounds of violence in the world by doing a single act of kindness to someone in need. We can serve as God's hands and feet in helping the weakest and in accompanying the lost on their journey home. By showing compassionate love, we can be beacons of hope for those who are wandering in the valley of darkness and despair. No one should be allowed to sink into the muck and mire of life.

FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

The result of summer watering has produced great fruit relative to the gardening group cultivating in the Dave Matt Garden. My efforts near the rectory patio was somewhat less productive as night visitors were able to enjoy some of the produce that was expected. Both the parsley and basil were in abundance as we are able to sustain the herbs for our Saturday evening pasta dishes. Some cultivation is asked for and is part of the preparation of the soil. I understand that the improvement in the Garden area improved the results of that which was placed in the soil.

Genesis 2:8 gives us
Then the Lord God planted a garden in Eden, in the East,
and he placed there (verse 7) the man whom he had formed out of the clay of the ground. we recall too the words You are soil and to soil you will return. We believe that we were reanimated in relationship with the Father through our relationship with the one acknowledged in I Corinthians 15:45 as we read The first man Adam became a living person while the last Adam was a life giving spirit. Also the first to be raised from the dead.

At baptism we are infused with the Holy Spirit and the soil of our lives then has the capacity to live in likeness to the one we have been baptized into a relationship with being Jesus. We read in Ezekiel 36:5 I will sprinkle clean water on you and you shall be clean. We may appreciate that the soil of our lives have been infused in the Holy Spirit and our mission (in a sense) is to cultivate the soil of our lives in relationship to the gifts and fruits of the Holy Spirit as well. The use of for water as we enter church with the availability of the blessed water fonts is a reminder. Sometimes done in a routine manner but perhaps the direction of reminding ourselves of the identity we have with the person of Jesus and being mindful of continual development of the life that is within us. The capacity that we have to live in His way and life and truth. The gifts of the Holy Spirit given at the rite of confirmation also asks for a cultivation for wisdom and knowledge (for two). As we appreciate the kindness of many who share the fruits of their labor (we have received cucumbers and zucchini here over the past few days) may we be conscious of the sharing of that which is given us through the waters of Baptism and seek to share in the labor in bearing the fruits of the gospel life instilled within the very soil of our lives. May our garden experience be conscious of the consequences of the first Adam.

From Bobbi Bugaj

There is a rhythm to my life that comes from prayer and meditating on sacred scripture, in the time I spend in silence and the time I am in the cacophony of the world. I have noted before that I love the psalm more because the psalmist or psalmists put into words this rhythm at times in my life. It is sometimes while living in the world and walking the footsteps of faith that I have found that God is truly, always with me. The psalms meaning on any one week, can give understanding in different ways. I got new insights this past week. This past Tuesday, we had psalms 137 and 138, plus the Colossians 3:15-17. In looking at them as a whole, I found consolation and hope in that rhythm. Psalm 137 is during the Babylonian exile and how hard it was for them to sing songs that they loved while being away from something they found holy, welcoming and healing. I have known that. After my Dad died, trying to sing songs at Mass was extremely hard, and while I did it, I did it in tears. I worshiped in song while my heart was breaking but I did preserve because I knew that God was with me always. Psalm 138 is about thanksgiving and gratefulness. The verse that started my rhythm of thought was "You stretch out your hand and save me, your hand will do all things for me." I thought of all the times that "God came to my rescue" and I, again, encountered all I am grateful and thankful for. I am thankful for God being in my life and the fact that I acknowledge that in following Him, there are no bad decisions. Gratefulness in my life as I appreciate and acknowledge all the kindness that he has shown me. I acknowledge that some answered prayers would not have been what I would choose, but they were the best and most compassionate for me and for the world I live in. I acknowledged that while I struggled after Dad died, I knew God was always there. God's fidelity to me has been greater than my fidelity to Him sometimes. I am also grateful for His saving graces. (And yes, it's all grace.) God's love for me never fails even if I do. Then we get to the line in Colossians 5:15, the scripture at evening prayer. "Christ's peace must reign in your hearts, since as members of the one body you have been called to that peace." In all of my life, I have hope that Christ's peace does reign there. My heart, the one organ in my body that I cannot live without needs the Holy Spirit to guide, nudge back to the path and open my eyes and mind to what it means to be a member. In being a member, I have shared my sorrow in songs sitting next to a stranger who handed me a Kleenex and a hand on my shoulder. Christ dwells in me and that is what I take out into this world. His enduring love is what gets me through the hard times, God is in my lived times and turns to thankfulness and gratefulness. It also reminds me that everything I do in this world should reflect the image of Christ in my heart so as to give it to others who may need it. I love the reminder that in all .
