TODAY'S SCRIPTURE: Following the Lord means nothing less than the cross: offering ourselves with Jesus as a living sacrifice and not conforming ourselves to this world. Following Him will entail derision and scorn, yet the Lord is our help.

(Jeremiah 38: 4-6, 8-10, Hebrews 12:1-4, Luke 12: 49-53)

The persevering obedience of faith is the challenge set before us. We are called to run along the path of the commandments with our eyes fixed on Christ. If we keep our eyes fixed on Christ, we will see the Light of Life that illumines our path. The author of the Letter to the Hebrews knew what he was talking about when he wrote: "Our God is a consuming fire" (Heb. 1:2:29). Our Lord, Jesus Christ came into the world to spark the flame of Divine Love. The Lord of Light chose to immerse himself in our darkness. He is our hope because "The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has not overcome it" (Jn. 1:5). For the spark to become a flame, it only takes one somebody to speak up (remember Ebed-melech). Disciples of the Light are people who put faith into practice. I am reminded of a statement attributed to Edmund Burke. "The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good people to do nothing." As children of the Light, we must not be afraid to endure the tensions that confront us as a result of our upward calling. Recall the words of St. Paul. "I press on toward the goal to win the prize of the upward call of God because of what Christ has done for us" (Phil. 3:14). Each of us has been invited into a relationship in which selfishness, uncaring, violence, and irreverence are confronted and overcome. The healing of our world is not going to be the result of our efforts, but rather, it will flow from the victory of our crucified and risen Lord. I am reminded of a song we used to sing at charismatic prayer meetings (I Want to Walk as a Child of the Light, by Kathleen Thomerson)

I want to walk as a child of the light

I want to follow Jesus

God sent the stars to give light to the world

The star of my life is Jesus

Like Ebed-melech we must be willing to stand up against the mob and call evil what is. "There is something wrong with this picture." Because we are authors of a history yet to be written, we have to do whatever we can to make the picture right. Jesus did not call us to be politically correct. He did not call us to preserve outward peace, a sort of gentlemen's agreement to keep everyone happy. We shouldn't be afraid to have difficult conversations. God has poured his Holy Spirit upon us to speak the truth in love and compassion. Recall how Jesus inaugurated his ministry in Nazareth. "The Spirit of the Lord is on me because he has anointed me to preach good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release from bondage to prisoners and recovery of sight for the blind, to proclaim liberty to captives, and to announce the year of the Lord's favor" (Lk. 4:19-20). Jesus sealed his proclamation in his blood, poured out on the cross. In his great act of love, Jesus reconciled us to one another. By taking our sinful nature to himself, he forgave the wrongs of the past and healed the wounds of hatred and sin. When he extended his arms in that everlasting sign of love, he transformed sorrow into love, death into life, disappointment into hope, abandonment into fellowship, and division into unity. May God who is the sustaining power in the universe use us as writers of a new page of history, weavers of hope, dream weavers of the future, and practitioners of goodwill. I'll close with a few words of encouragement that Christopher Robin spoke to Winnie the Pooh.

Promise me you'll always remember:

You're braver than you believe,
and stronger than you seem,
and smarter than you think.

FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

I had the opportunity to visit and have lunch with an old neighbor earlier this summer. We recollected some of the activity that we enjoyed in the summer months. Memories of playing football in the street (his cousin and I played and I recalled that when the football hit the telephone wires I was told there's no interference as the "lines are there for everyone" and so we played on. Street equity I suppose. We also recollected Robert Manry, who made a non-stop trip across the Atlantic Ocean in a tiny sail boat known as Tinkerbelle. That would be 1965 and beginning on June 1 and ending on August 17. Beginning in Falmouth Massachusetts and arriving in Falmouth Cornwall, England. Later he set out with his wife and family and dog and cat beginning in Cleveland and through the Great Lakes and down the Mississippi and further then back to Cleveland.

It was there I want to remember that my former neighbor's dad greeted him on having made a good trip. I wonder if his excursion with his family might be a kind of metaphor for our own journey and so navigation through life. Are we moving in a direction of the Gospel life becomes a question that might be inclusive of those with whom we share life as well. Folks that navigate have an assigned course. It is about a determined course and steering to read a certain goal. On the first excursion Mr. Manry was alone. In the second it included the household. Excursions give us a direction of journey and a hastening to our final destination. I think of the direction of Our Lady who journeyed to the house of Elizabeth and as was written 'hastened' and was acknowledged of having the presence of the Savior within her with the words "Blessed are you among women and blessed is the fruit of your womb." Whether alone or with the people we travel with we are called to drive forward and move through life as those in conscious possession of the word made flesh. I have not read about the Tinkerbelle experience. I am aware that the Gospel gives us some idea of what it is to travel on the sea of life with dependence upon the One who sustained them when the waters got difficult to navigate. May we navigate well and appreciating that we are not alone in our moving toward the life of heaven.

Protecting God's Children

The Diocese of Cleveland's "Protecting God's Children" program is a continuing effort to instruct and inform everyone about the protection of children from sexual abuse. To report any past or present suspected inappropriate behavior toward children by priests, deacons, religious, lay ecclesial ministers or personnel associated with the Church, please contact the Diocesan Response Service Office at 216-334-2999 or email: response_services@dioceseofcleveland.org You are also asked to immediately inform local authorities about any inappropriate behavior.

On September 12-13, St. Martin of Tours Parish will learn about the ministries of Franciscan Mission Service (FMS). As a Catholic, 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, FMS prepares and sends lay people to serve communities in South America, the Caribbean, and here in the United States—and the organization relies on the prayers and financial support of U.S.

parishes to do this. In anticipation of this visit, Franciscan Mission Service invites parishioners to reflect on Pope Leo XIV's words from his first papal message:

"Together, we must look for ways to be a missionary Church, a Church that builds bridges and encourages dialogue, a Church ever open to welcoming... all those who are in need of our charity, our presence, our readiness to dialogue and our love." How might you be called to mission, to dialogue, to presence? Some give by going on mission, and some go by giving—with both prayer and donations. To find out more and hear missionaries' first-hand accounts, visit www.franciscanmissionservice.org.

From Bobbi Bugaj

I have a black eye. It looks worse than it actually is but it is in the getting there, that acknowledgement and laughter are paramount. It was storming on Saturday and I was home.

As I observed the rain coming down fast and hard, the thought crossed my mind, maybe I should stay in the car. I looked at the 10 feet from the car to my front porch and thought "I can do this." What happened next, and if it was on tape would have been a great clip for America's Funniest Home Videos.

Needless to say, I was wet, had a pair of glasses that looked like they had been through a tornado and was not sure whether or not I had actually hit my head. Professionals in medicine later said that the glasses stopped me from hitting my head but their impact caused bruising. I laughed because God was nearer to me than I believed. It was a nudge that said, stay in the car. It was the hysterically funny dance in the driveway which my ego is so happy no one saw but that I share anyway because in hindsight, it is funny and telling. It was the nice professionals that checked me out and said, everything is fine and gravity will be taking its course. I was free to make a decision that seemed so simple, 10 feet to the porch and the nature of running water and I was protected by another nudge that said, roll. God was closer than my breath and guiding me as a child. I will be Black Eye Bobbi for a while, but this incident did in a physical way, point out a direction of my life that did to be looked at. A saying that hangs in my house. "Be still and know that I Am." It is the 'Be still' part that I work on. I could of sat in the car, I had the time to wait out the bad part of the storm and I did not. That is the freedom to choose. I did choose to roll and that is what saved me. Life is not this clean and neither is faith. It requires a choice and sometimes even the good choice is hard and trying because life is hard and trying. It is the voice that says I am always here and listen. God's presence was there as it always is, as was also his grace. Life says, bad things happen, and God tells me, what the better choices are but it is up to me to choose. As I write this the Serenity Prayer comes to mind. "God, grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, the courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference." I pray this prayer because in the stillness I can see and acknowledge a bad decision and God gives me the courage to shake my head at the decision laugh at myself, acknowledge that I did roll when told to, and have the wisdom to say, I need to be still more often. I am a child of God. I sometimes act like a three-year-old with 3-year-old choices and consequences and I also have faith that God will protect me, guide me, and love me, will sit in stillness and listen and learn to listen more closely. I know that I am loved by God and everything is grace, and that there is a need for a bit more stillness in my life. I am learning and will continue to learn just how much, it is in the stillness and I acknowledge and see, I am a child of God.
